SATURDAY, February 20, 1868.

THE DEMOCRATIC CALL.

A Democratic State Convention has been called by the Rhode Island State Committee, who say in their call: "Having crushed by force of arms a rebellion which aimed to dismember the nation, we are now called to no less difficult task of repelling an attack, which, under color of law, would set at nought those great principles upon which its existence alone can rest." Nothing could be cooler than for a party having the record of the Democratic party for the last four years, to give expression to a sentiment like this: "We having crushed a rebellion!" No presidential campaign has intervened, no national convention has met, since the party from which this language emanates held one in 1861, when the country was in the very crisis of the war and every patriotic man was putting forth his energies to carry it forward to success. That Convention, at such an hour, declared the war a failure and the rebels triumphant. It was composed of men, not every Democratic State Convention since has been, who pronounced against the measures taken to crush the rebellion and, in some instances, called explicitly upon the government to recall the troops from the field and cease its efforts.

The call further says: "As the indomitable courage of the people has carried them successfully through the first great trial, we may with confidence believe that they will not waste the fruits of their hard-earned victory." We do not think they will. Just what they gained in the field, they mean to retain; the schemes of an unscrupulous rebellion to the contrary, notwithstanding, surrounded and controlled in his attempts by leaders of this same party. The people intend to secure the freedom and equal rights for all for which they fought, and to place the government of the restored States in loyal hands; and they will do it by preventing the accession to power of the Democratic party which means to do just the opposite. The history of Contests, platforms and speeches, from 1861 to this day, when they are reading New Hampshire, fully demonstrate the aim of that party to be, to give the rebels political power; and no sophistry can blind the public to the fact.

Great Bank Defalcation in Pawtucket.

The Providence Herald says that on Thursday it became publicly known at Pawtucket that the North Providence Bank had suffered a loss of fifty thousand dollars, through the delinquency of one of the directors, with the knowledge and assistance of the cashier. The facts as we have learned them from different sources, seem to be as follows: Something more than thirteen years ago, Daniel Wilkinson, Esq., one of the directors, obtained a loan of several thousand dollars from the bank upon notes endorsed by reliable parties. When these notes became due, Mr. Wilkinson was unable to or at least did not meet them; but through some arrangements with the cashier, Mr. John C. Tower, the notes were continued and the names of the endorsers were withdrawn from them. Mr. Tower states, and we have no doubt correctly, that this was intended merely as a temporary arrangement on his part for the accommodation of Mr. Wilkinson, and that he entertained no doubt that the latter personage would soon redeem his notes and thus make everything "straight." Time went by, however without bringing to Mr. Wilkinson the means to redeem his paper; and furthermore, it is understood that he has from time to time obtained other sums from the bank, through the agency of the cashier and with his knowledge only. As we said, the "irregularity" began more than thirteen years ago; and the participants have managed to keep it from the other officers until now. To do this was a matter requiring no little finesse and shrewd management; and had it not been that the most implicit confidence was placed in both Mr. Wilkinson and Mr. Tower, it is not possible that the fraud could have been concealed. The successors attending the efforts of the defraudants to cover up their malpractices is accounted for by the fact that Mr. Wilkinson has invariably been a member of the board of examiners appointed to look into the affairs of the institution, and has conducted all the examinations, and by inserting the necessary figures at intervals on the rolls, the footings have been made to correspond with the amount which would have been on hand had the funds not been abstracted. Of course, under these circumstances, the dividends declared were larger than the real receipts admitted; and the deficit has been made up from the money in bank. The entire loss to the institution, growing out of these movements, is between fifty and fifty-two thousand dollars, or more than one-third of the entire capital stock, which is $35,000.

The knowledge of the fraud which had so long been practiced, was brought to the President and Directors in this manner: Recently several young men have been appointed upon the board of directors; and at the last meeting of the board, the President remarked that the younger members would have all the business to do something, and they might as well commence at once by making an examination into the condition of the bank. This suggestion was carried out, and Mr. Wilkinson was consequently left off the examining board. It was of course impossible for the fraud to be concealed longer, and Mr. Wilkinson, at the adjuration of Mr. Tower, made confession to the President, Mr. Gideon L. Spencer. The President was almost dismasted at the disclosure, as were all the other officials not the slightest suspicion having been entertained by one of them of the misconduct of their fellow officials. Measures were at once taken to ascertain the precise state of affairs, and an investigation resulted in the development of the facts as stated above. A meeting of the stockholders has been called, and until they meet it is impossible to say what steps will be taken. There was a grand rush on the institution, Thursday, of depositors, and a very large proportion of the deposits were withdrawn. There is no doubt, we believe, that all bill-holders will be paid in full.

Daniel Wilkinson, the principal defendant in the fraud, has long been a prominent citizen of Pawtucket. He is one of the Justices of the Court of Magistrates, a prominent officer of the Nonpareil Temple of Honor (temperance) and of the Odd Fellows Lodge, has been considered "one of the pillars of the church," and has taken a leading part in political movements. He was at one time cashier of the bank which he has sold, and for a year or more he acted as treasurer of the Institution of Savings. It is conceded that he eclipses Peckskill in all essential particularities.

Mr. Tower has always enjoyed the respect of a very large circle of acquaintances, who are greatly surprised and deeply grieved at the developments. It is generally believed that he never received or gave the benefit of any of the money taken from the bank, and the people of Pawtucket seem to sympathize with him in his downfall, while deprecating the weakness by which it was caused.

Defection in the South.

A lady of this city has within a few days received a letter from Miss Griffin, missionary among the freedmen in Washington, which gives a sad account of the suffering among the blacks in that city. The letter says that no one can imagine the number of families who at this time are lying on the bare floor of miserable shanties, with so little the covering that children are frozen in some instances so that their feet become numb. The old and feeble, particularly, are in great need of fuel, food, and clothing; and when it is dispensed to them they receive it with every manifestation of gratitude.

Miss Griffin in her letter gives the following touching incident.—"To day when a very old and blind woman came to tell us how she and three little orphan children, her dead daughters' children, slept on the floor all the time with no bed but the rug they picked up in the streets, I told her I had nothing but one patched blanket that a dear friend of mine sent down from the North, to warm somebody who was suffering,—she caught my hand in her two, and said from her heart, 'She's a seat in Heaven for dear sake, I feel dat, and you'll see Abin' Judah is not so blind inside as she is out—no, no, God'll take care den as remember us poor black ons, I'se sure dat.'

Dedication.

The new Congregational Church at Pawtucket was dedicated Thursday afternoon. The church was filled to its utmost capacity. Professor E. A. Kelly, presided at the organ. Rev. James O. Barney of East Providence, made the opening prayer. The Dedication Service was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Blodgett, who took for his text Acts xviii: 24, 25: "God that made the world, and all things therein, seeing that He is Lord of Heaven and Earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands, neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed anything; seeing He giveth to all life and breath and all things."—John iv: 23, 24. "But the hour cometh and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth; for the Father seeketh such to worship Him in spirit and in truth." The service was a very able and highly eloquent one, very appropriate to the occasion, and was listened to with earnest attention. Rev. T. Thayer, D. D., of Newport, made the dedicatory prayer, and Rev. S. R. Denison, of Providence, delivered the charge to the people.

The special order of the day, to wit: The subject of the non-concurrence of the House with the Senate Judiciary committee's amendment to the House resolutions relative to the claims of the State against the National Bank of North America, in the matter of the frauds of the State Auditor's office, was referred back a resolution relative to the compensation of the Adjutant General, Quartermaster General, and Paymaster General, for the two years ending December 31, 1867. The committee recommended its adoption, and it was so adopted.

Mr. Enos moved to recall the resolutions fixing the salaries of the judges of the Superior Court from the Judiciary committee, and to refer the same to the finance committee, which motion was adopted, and the bill so disposed of.

Mr. Currier, from the committee on the judiciary, reported back the resolutions of instruction to our senators and representatives in Congress relative to the claims of the State against the United States, our war expenses, and offered a substitute therefore, both of which were laid on the table for the present.

The Chair having decided that if the Senate receded from their vote on the amendment, the only course left would be either to adopt the House resolutions in full or defeat them entirely and introduce a new set of resolutions.

Mr. Edy moved that the Senate adhere to its vote, but before the vote on the motion was taken,

The Chair having decided that if the Senate receded from their vote on the amendment, the only course left would be either to adopt the House resolutions in full or defeat them entirely and introduce a new set of resolutions.

Mr. Edy moved that the Senate adhere to its vote, but before the vote on the motion was taken,

Mr. Grosvenor reviewed the proceedings already gone through with upon this subject taking up in detail the various points made in the different debates which have been had in the Senate and upholding his opinion that the master should be referred to a board of referees rather than brought into the court's. He opposed the motion to adjourn.

Mr. Smith of Barrington, moved to postpone the whole question to half-past eleven o'clock to tomorrow morning, and after some debate on the question, it was so postponed.

Mr. Currier offered the following resolution relative to the military expenses of the State, and moved its passage, and it was so passed:

"Resolved, That the committee on finance be and they are hereby instructed forthwith to report to the Senate the amount of all expenses incurred by the State for the support and maintenance of the military forces of the State, and for all other incidental expenses of any military bodies, and any and all other expenses and expenditures in account of the movements of any military forces from any part of the State to another for whatever object or purpose."

Mr. Currier also offered another resolution providing that when this General Assembly adjourn, on the 13th of March next, it adjourn to meet according to law. After objections thereto by the Senator from North Providence, on the ground that the business of the Assembly would of necessity require a longer session, the resolution was laid on the table for the present.

THE WOUNDED SOLDIER AND THE OLD COLORED WOMAN.

One sees a good deal of character when traveling, especially in horse cars, and as I do a good deal of the latter sort, I often get glimpses of the odd, disagreeable or pleasant side of my fellow beings. Let me tell you a little scene which was a lesson to all who saw it. (Going to Brooklyn, one day, I took a car at a time when it was fullest. As we rolled along I glanced up and down the two rows of faces, and amused myself by studying them. None were particularly attractive except a boy of eighteen, or so, who sat reading in the corner opposite. He wasn't handsome, nor very well dressed; but there was something very pleasant to me in the thin, brown face bent studiously over the book. From the top he wore the erect carriage of his shoulders. I fancied that he had been in the army, and I liked him all the more for that. While I sat looking at him an old colored woman got in. All the seats were full, and no one stirred. Two gentlemen had given their seats to white ladies, but none of the five seated gentlemen offered the old woman a seat. She was very black and shabby, but the ugly face was kind and patient, and the poor clothes were neat. Having no place against color, I was about to offer my seat when the boy glanced up, rose instantly, and beckoning said, respectively,—

"Here's a place for you."

She took it with a motherly "Thank you, thank you," and settled herself with a sigh of satisfaction. Two girls looked at one another and giggled, but stopped suddenly, with an altered look, when they saw, was none of us had observed before, that the youth was lame. As he arranged his crutch the old gentleman next me bobbed up in an injudicious way which made me suspect that he was a little ashamed of himself.

"Here, you mustn't stand; sit down, sit down," he said.

"Certainly not, sir, I can stand perfectly well," and with a decided shade of the head he looked down at his book, closing a little under the four-and-twenty pairs of eyes fixed on him. The old gentleman and the two girls have encroached 400 feet on Chicago Harbor.

Plant chafers are so plenty in Missouri that they are used for swine's food.

About Home.

A SCORN BREWSTER.—Several "sun dogs" appeared in the heavens this morning, accompanied with a muted cheer around the sun itself, which the oldest inhabitants say, are the sure precursors of a storm. We have decided to wait and see, as it is easier to judge of the result after the lapse of several days, than at this time.

HISTORIES.—The annual missionary collection which was postponed last week on account of the weather will be taken at the Marlboro Street Methodist Episcopal church to-morrow.

MISSTAKES.—Our readers will observe the announcement of the coming of the Minstrels at the Opera House this evening.—The names of Sam, Sharpie and Ben, Clinton are familiar to the whole country, and this troupe stands high among the many who are engaged in the profession. As they have been here often it is needless to speak of their merits. They are so well known and so generally appreciated that they will of course have a full house.

H. J. BUNCELETT FULTON STEAMER,
Cooker. A Metal & Glass Cooker.
A Metal & Glass Cooker. Cooked over one hole of a Stove or Range in half the time it can be done by any other process.

Cooking: Tea, Coffee, Biscuits, Puddings, Beefs, and Oysters, without parboiling, or the flavor of these vegetables.

This apparatus condenses its own Steam, after having been used, so that the Jars and flavor coated in the inner vessel are perfectly delicious and by the skill of a little exercise.

This Steamer has the advantage over all others, by having each part made so it can be detached and cleaned or any part repaired, except the food cooking vessel. British Patent with the date of March 27, 1856. An examination of this apparatus will convince any one of its superiority over all

Watches for the Million.

ARTHURDALE & CO., GREAT WATCHES, C. 1857.

Everybody needs a good watch, and watches get at the lowest possible price; a house of quality knowing they have confined various appendages to the best persons, money, and the other fall to them, and the house of quality has a large stock. ARTHURDALE & CO. have a great arrangement by which, for the small sum of $20, a good and reliable watch may be easily obtained.

ARTHURDALE & CO., 112 Broadway, on the following plan. Certificates containing the name of all the watches named in our whole list (which is next to all applicants) are mixed up, enclosed in envelopes, and sold for 25 cents each. Every certificate is a certificate of value, and is to be referred to the list, name of the watch, and value.

We undertake to send any watch drawn whatever may be the value of the same, and we will make it absolutely depend upon getting the watch back again.

We guarantee that every purchaser of One Dollar's worth of certificates shall receive at least one watch, and if no one is drawn, we will give him one, which is the best part of the arrangement.

For a reliable watch, differing silver, gold, and steel, and usually gold, you will certainly get such a watch for $20. You may get a Gold Chrono-meter for $200. We will also give you a
